

Peter Latak &lt;peterlatak@gmail.com&gt;

---

wind turbines and their effects on people are a world wide phenomenon

---

Peggy Lowrey &lt;pklowrey@verizon.net&gt;

9. augusta 2010 14:33

Komu: peterlatak@gmail.com

Dear Dr. Latek,

I live in the United States, in Illinois, in a County called DeKalb. My husband and I are in a lawsuit with 39 other families against our local County government and NextEra Energy for putting 131 turbines, each 398 feet tall and using the GE 1.5 megawatts turbine on top behind our home. In some cases these turbines are within 1400 feet of people's foundations of their homes. These monsters kill bird and bats which eat harmful insects, took away incredibly valuable crop land (the most valuable topsoil in the world, I'm told, since it is fertile top soil deposited by glaciers millions of years ago and cannot be replaced), and are now keeping the people who live around them awake at night. EVERYONE knows that loss of sleep is extremely detrimental to health. The World Health Organization even points this out. Yet, governments, both local and national, WORLD WIDE, think these things are GREEN and therefore GOOD. And, using this false sense of righteousness, they force them too close to people. The noise you hear and the inaudible noise are both pollutants. The cement and steel are NOT green. The hydraulic fluid inside is NOT green. The fiberglass and metal is NOT green. They rape the land, wreck the environment and slice and dice birds and bats. THEY ARE NOT GREEN. PLUS, they USE electricity to run the mechanicals inside the machine....and, they only run at 30 % efficiency AT MOST. Which means that they put all these things up for a project that doesn't do what it says it will do: provide electricity.

They call these things WIND FARMS. Nothing could be further from the truth. I live in farmland and these things are wrecking it at turning it into an industrial zone.

The company that put these things up has put up more than 9000 in the United States alone. Canada has thousands of them put up by various companies. This is a world wind phenomenon.

And, it has to stop.

Do all you can to fight it. The world wide web is loaded with information about this. Show it to your people.

Japan is about to do a detailed 4 year study on the sound effects of turbines.

There is a worldwide Noise symposium just for turbines.

There is a European Platform against them, and a North America Platform against them.

Show this letter to those who do not believe this. You have my permission.

Mrs. Peggy Lowrey

10. 8. 2010

Gmail - wind turbines and their effect...

11413 Waterman Road

Waterman, Illinois 60556 United States of America

815-264-9476

---